

Growing trends in resin coatings

In collaboration with Funki Dezigns, their approved applicator, Technical Finishes have brought new meaning to resin flooring in the residential market with the completion of a prestigious home in Waterfall Country Estate in Midrand, Gauteng.

It is becoming a growing trend to use epoxy and polyurethane resin coatings in the residential market sectors. Not only do these coatings last longer, but their surfaces are highly attractive and easy to keep clean. A variety of colours is available to match any modern home's style and décor.

Technical Finishes manufacture Solid-kote UVC, which is a UV-stable, thin-film coating for exterior and interior applications. The system can be rendered non-slip by adding a glass bead into the finished product, which assists with outdoor use. For Funki Dezigns, attention to detail in preparing the concrete surfaces was vital for the final smooth finish. They used a diamond grinder to prepare the concrete floors and over 354m² was successfully completed.

Cementitious wall finishes are offered for a more rustic look and feel and are coated with clear polyurethane sealers. A matt, sheen or high-gloss finish is achievable.

Technical Finishes together with their skilled applicators ensure that they always deliver results.
